

"GIVING AND RECEIVING"

INTRODUCTION Remember the little girl who received a pin cushion from her grandmother at Christmas. She did the proper thing and responded shortly after Christmas with a brief thank you note which said:

"Dear Grandma: Thank you so much. I have wanted a pin cushion all my life, but not very much."

Giving and receiving is what we're thinking about here this morning for a few minutes. For these are the days when we're getting ready for Christmas. Buying and wrapping. Giving and receiving.

GIVE YOURSELF How many of you read Dear Abby? Did you catch the column in Tuesday's paper, entitled "Give Yourself For Christmas?" I liked it. Let me share it with you because it ties in with what we're thinking about today.

DEAR ABBY: Last year you printed a letter from a young lady who was discouraged about the attitude of family and friends about Christmas. She said all they thought about was presents and big dinners, so she considered taking a room in a hotel for the day, but it was too costly.

It was a very fine column. Please print it again.

- V. E. H.

DEAR V: Here it is:

DEAR ABBY: I'm having a hard time deciding what to do for Christmas. I live about 40 miles from my parents' home, but I don't want to go home for Christmas because it is a depressing time for me. My parents go to church regularly, but they don't act like good Christians. All Christmas means to them is a pretty tree, lots of presents and good food. But it means so much more to me.

I don't want to stay where I live because the people I live with have the same attitude about Christmas. It's all presents and food. Most of my friends are expecting a gift from me and I can't afford any. I was thinking of leaving town for the day, but I can't afford a hotel room. Can you give me some advice on what to do? I hate this time of year. It's so depressing!

YOUNG AND UNHAPPY.

DEAR YOUNG: Get in touch with a nursing home, a veterans hospital or a children's institution, and offer to visit those who have no one to visit them. You don't need to bring presents. Just bring a cheerful attitude, a happy face, and a willingness to listen and chat awhile.

Offer to write letters, read, make a phone call or run an errand.

When you do something for someone else, it's impossible to feel depressed. Try it. It really works. Then write to me and tell me what kind of Christmas you had. I care.

JESUS / GIVING AND RECEIVING I hope that as you make your preparations for Christmas that you'll keep Jesus in mind. Not only is He the model for generous and uncalculated giving, but He is also the model for gracious and unselfish receiving.

Remember that beautiful incident recorded for us in John's Gospel, that word picture that describes the occasion when Jesus was a dinner guest in a home in Bethany. Suddenly an uninvited guest burst into the dining room - a woman bearing a gift of expensive ointment. She proceeded to pour the precious ointment on the feet of our Lord. Remember the reaction of the guests to the gift?

That gesture brought forth grumbling among some of the dinner guests. "What's the point of such a terrible waste." "Look at the mess she's caused." "It could have been sold and the money given to the poor". But Jesus quietly said, "Let her alone. Why must you make her feel uncomfortable; she has done a beautiful thing for me."

Arthur John Gossip, in a commentary on this passage, wrote this word:

"Always the great giver was the most grateful of receivers; and in this instance He saw past what to us would have been the embarrassment of the situation, and thought only of the affectionate heart so full of thankfulness".

That's a lovely line..."the great giver was the most grateful of receivers". We're encouraged to be generous givers, but how are we at receiving? There's a certain amount of careless and thoughtless receiving in our world - from pride that finds it hard to accept kindness - or from greed and selfishness that takes it all for granted - or from sheer thoughtlessness that simply neglects to note and respond.

I once knew a person who before Christmas Day was hardly over she would have her slip of paper and pencil in hand, writing out her list of gifts to be exchanged, making arrangements with those who had given them how to go about the exchange. How often I was tempted to say something like this to her:

"When someone plans for and made even sacrifices to give you a gift, don't make the person feel he has made a mistake or exercised poor judgement. Let the person know how much you appreciate it.

Don't kill his joy in giving by being a poor receiver. When someone pays you a compliment in words, don't disagree with the giver or minimize his gift - for kind words are a beautiful gift. Accept them gratefully, even though you may not deserve them...or believe them."

Giving and receiving. Both are manifestations of Christian love in action. As we go about our preparations, remember Jesus - "the great giver who was also the most grateful of receivers."

DEEPER TRUTH

Now there's a deeper truth to be mined here in today's message, simply that the real meaning and light of Christmas really depends first of all upon the grace of receiving. It was so at the first Christmas, and a century later, the author of the Fourth Gospel, summed it up in words about Jesus when he wrote:

"He came to His own, and His own people received Him not....but - to all who received Him, gave He power...power....to become children of God."

Let that word seep in...let it sink in. That's the word we're searching for and desperately need to hear. Midst all of this colorful pageantry of the Nativity Story - shepherds, Wise Men, Mary, Joseph, the baby in the manger - midst all of this there is a great truth that shines forth. Into our world of human affairs had come a new life, a new power...capable of making a profound difference in the lives of people. Some recognized it and received it, while others perhaps because of pride or pre-occupation or just sheer indifference missed out on it altogether. In that life mankind finds the deepest of all meaning and the highest of all his hopes.

"I bring you good news which shall be for all people". Yes, it had and has its universal implications - a message for all mankind. It is the message which the world never quite remembers, but has never quite forgotten. The message of God's love breaking through into the arena of life. It was a message that strangely did not stay in a tiny far-off corner of the Roman Empire. It began to spread - like wildfire - to Asia Minor, to Greece, to Rome. It was a Word about a gift - a gift of incredible and incomparable value - not to be earned...only to be received - the very gift of God Himself - breaking through to us, coming through to us in the person of Christ.

It was and still is only a matter of listening...of accepting...of receiving.

GRACE OF RECEIVING

Some may have trouble accepting so simple a word. We feel we must build those steep steps of requirement - as though to be a follower of Jesus somehow depends upon how much we know, or do, or give, or how many points we manage to score in the game of life. We miss the glory and the joy of it all if we see the path of Bethlehem's manger through any such maze or conditions - a road containing toll gates through which we must pass in order to touch Eternal Truth.

Having made a study of the world's great religions, D. T. Niles, the late and great Christian spirit of Ceylon, made this point in considering the difference between religion in general and Christianity in particular:

"That other religions have to do with man's attempts to improve and save himself, and that Christianity has first of all to do with an act of God performed in man's behalf which man must receive."

It all begins not with our giving, but our receiving - the gift of God, incarnate in Christ Jesus. This is what the Gospel and the Good News is all about and never does it shine with greater brilliance than at this time of year. In Christ, in all that He stands for - forgiveness for the past, strength for the present, courage and hope for the future, love and healing for our hurts, light for life's journey, amazing grace for all of our needs - God is trying to say something, to give us something.

TODAY There may be some person or person present today who need to hear this word and to receive that Gift.

As we brush up against Eternal Truth in these coming days, may we be willing to listen...to heed...to accept. And then like the Wise Men, who followed that star and that light that eventually became the light of our world, may we seek to find His spirit at work in the city...not only to worship Him, but eventually to return as did they, "By another way" - the way of love, peace, hope and joy.

PRAYER Let us pray:

Make us sensitive to your presence and nearness in these moments, O God. Come in to our lives and heal them, into our world. and redeem it.

"How silently, how silently the wondrous gift is given.

So God imparts to human hearts the blessings of His heaven.

No ear may hear His coming, but in this world of sin;

Where meek souls will receive Him still, the dear Christ enters in.

Amen

DEAR ABBY

Give yourself for Christmas

DEAR ABBY: Last year you printed letter from a young lady who was discouraged about the attitude of family and friends about Christmas. She said they thought about was presents and dinners, so she considered taking a room in a hotel for the day, but it was too costly.

It was a very fine column. Please print it again! — V. L.

DEAR V.: Here it is.

DEAR ABBY: I'm having a hard time deciding what to do for Christmas. I live about 40 miles from my parents' home but I don't want to go home for Christmas because it is a depressing time for me. My parents go to church regularly but they don't act like good Christians. All Christmas means to them is a Christmas tree, lots of presents and good food. It means so much more to me.

I don't want to stay where I live because the people I live with have the same attitude about Christmas. It's no presents and food. Most of my friends are expecting a gift from me and I can't afford any.

I was thinking of leaving town for Christmas day, but I can't afford a hotel room.

Can you give me some advice on what to do? I hate this time of year. It's so depressing! — YOUNG AND UNHAPPY

DEAR YOUNG: Get in touch with a nursing home, a veterans' hospital, a children's institution, and offer to visit those who have no one to visit them. They don't need to bring presents. Just bring a cheerful attitude, a happy face and a willingness to listen and chat awhile.

Offer to write letters, read, make a phone call or run an errand.

When you do something for someone else, it's impossible to feel depressed. It really works. Then write to me and tell me what kind of Christmas you want. I care.

DEAR ABBY: As the Christmas season nears, please allow me to share an idea for one of the best presents I've ever received.

I'm in the Army, stationed in Korea. For Christmas last year, my mother promised me a parcel of goodies every month!

It doesn't take much time or money and it's greatly appreciated all throughout the year. I'd recommend this as a terrific Christmas gift to any GI (soldier) away from home.

— N. S. IN KOREA

DEAR N. S.: Thanks for a practical suggestion.

ers readers' er queries

g for Tomorrow

ery took care of his body, ard at it. One day, after some s running, he discovered The attery, a newspaper reporter,
er. This is his story...

All I know, and know then is that if there was some way to stop it, I would not die.
And, if not, I'd go on my own terms.
In the days before I went into the hospital, I stayed with my mother. She had quite a number of medical books around, and I just couldn't resist. I started looking up symptoms.
I remembered that several weeks earlier I had had a period of incredible perspiration while I was in the hospital.

he Post, Oct. 10, 1979

ublished a series of articles on the experi-orters who had cancer and underwent both therapy. In concluding his series, reporter welcomed questions and comments from e close to them.

ters were received, making individual reicault. What follows is a selection of repre-attery's responses.

cancer
ow in a im im-
put into ss as to what to usband
RS. V.B.
ne, N.Y.

inly not oint up
was try-pretty
s of my Cancer
iends of ly than out us-
ss. The
a "dirty
fferent serious will be
are tre-
quality
o your n if she culosis.
om my om talk-
cer vice harm hem as special

it. That's never shut me up before, though.

I have seen all too many occasions when a doctor refuses pain medication to a very elderly patient who has weeks if not days to live. The doctor knows it but still is afraid of,
for instance, the addictive potential of the drug. Worrying about drug addiction in that kind of patient is ridiculous.
Such a patient should be saturated with pain-killers.

In all fairness, doctors are paying really incredible malpractice insurance premiums and have their own positions to

Reporter — and cancer victim — William T. Slattery.

worry about. I just think that at the point where medical science admits there is no hope and almost no time left, a doctor who can summon the courage should remember that if he cannot cure his primary function is to alleviate human suffering. —W.T.S.

I HAVE to disagree with you on several points of your articles. You say that we should fight. I am 63 and am in constant pain. I have been told there is no help available for my type of cancer. Besides, I am a diabetic and epileptic.

it being but not rds, forher as a seri-nd the ave no
-W.T.S.

has se-
It's all instant
she is ugh or here is ecover.
cepted
anasia would eks or